HONGKONG, AUGUST 15TH, 1893.

REGULAR'S telegram on the silver question published to-day leaves a good deal to be desired both in sense and grammar. It is impossible to say exactly what it means, but it conveys the general idea that the silver party in the United States Congress is a good deal stronger than has been supposed and that they will be able to prevent the proposed boycotting of the metal. Whether a resolution has actually been passed in favour of free coinage or it is simply supposed that free coinage will be adopted seems uncertain, while we are left in total ignorance as to what the ratio is intended to be, except that it is to be an increased one, that is to say, instead of being sixteen to one, it may be twenty or twenty-five to one. Some enlightenment on this point would have been very welcome.

The fact, however, that silver is not to be discarded as money in the States is distinctly encouraging, provided the new law rests on some solid basis and is likely to be permanent. If, like the Sherman Act, it carries with it the elements of its own destruction and is to be taken advantage by the speculators and gamblers in silver for the furtherance of their own selfish ends its effect will be entirely disastrous. What is wanted is stability, and after the painful experience of the working of the Sherman Act it can hardly be supposed that America will enter on any further make-shift legislation on such an important subject as the currency. Mr. Sherman himself does not seem at all proud of the act that bears his name. That measure was, he says, brought forward and adopted as an alternative to free coinage; but from every point of view it would have been infinitely better had the battle between bimetallism and the single gold standard been fought out to a finish at that time instead of being temporarily compromised by such a piece of legislation as the Sherman Act, which only postponed the inevitable day and in the meantime disorganized the world's exchanges in a way that has proved disastrous to trade everywhere. Bimetallism is the true solution of the currency problem, but whether any one country, even the United States, would be able to maintain that system while all the other leading nations are committed to the single gold standard appears doubtful. If America determines to make the experiment, however, it is within the bounds of possibility that she may carry some of the other nations with her. England thus, hitherto been the chief obstacle standing in the way of the adoption of international bimetallism. At the Brussels Conference there is little doubt that she could have turned the scale in favour of the double standard had she been so disposed, but she stood firm for gold. The bimetallic party is making rapid progress in England, however, and at the next general election it is within the bounds of possibility that they may find themselves in a majority in the House of Commons. In the meantime some of the Continental countries whose predictions are in favour of silver may be induced by the example of the United States to abandon the scramble for gold, irrespective of England's attitude on the question, though the proposed change of ratio would place the countries of the Latin Union in a difficult position should they wish to revert to bimetallism, as it would be necessary for them to write down the value of their existing large stock of silver coin, which would involve them in a considerable loss. This proposed change of ratio, if carried into effect, will preclude all possibility of our ever seeing a four-and-a-half-penny dollar again, but if the action to be taken by America results in securing us against a fall below two-and-a-half-pence it will be something to be thankful for.

One serious result of the recent drought, according to a Japanese paper, is that the Japan Current, or Kuro Siwo, has temporarily changed its course in consequence of the small amount of fresh water available in the sea. This grain, has had the effect of lifting the whole flotilla on the Japanese coast, and the direction of the current causing the whales to forsake the neighbourhood of the land.

M. Le Myre de Villiers, who was for some time Governor-General of French Indo-China and who now represents that Colony in the Chamber, arrived at Singapore by the last French mail-route to Saigon, whither he is going to seek re-election. At Singapore, however, he was stopped by telegrams and is to go to Bangkok as plenipotentiary on behalf of France to adjust differences with Siam. The Peixi left Saigon on the 30th inst. for Singapore to convey M. Le Myre de Villiers to Bangkok.

The Nagasaki Express says the work of the Corinthian ship canal has been opened. The first sod of the canal was cut by the King of Greece in April 1882. The isthmus is about 31 miles in breadth, there being a backbone in the middle 120 to 180 feet high. A port and harbour are to be established at each end of the canal. It is calculated that the length of passage saved from the port of the Black Sea will be from 100 to 250 miles, and that the ships from the southern Greek coast will be thus avoided. The cost is estimated at thirty million francs, but this sum has probably been largely exceeded. The works were stopped during a portion of 1889-90 on the resumption of the Comptoir d'Escompte.]

CLIMATE.

News has been received at Shanghai of the death, at the early age of 48, of Captain Booth, of the Merchant Customs.

The death of Mr. John R. Ropponen has been a sufferer for some time past, and he must have been ill for some time. His many friends in the East will regret his untimely decease.

The Band of the 1st Shropshire Light Infantry will play the following programme at the Officers' Mess, this evening, commencing at 8 o'clock:

"Marguerite's Dream"; "Maytime Water Music"; from incidental Music to "Hercules"; "Sir A. Sullivan."

"Madame Rosalie"; "Fair Rosamund"; "Carlyle's March"; "The Queen's Birthday March"; "Wadsworth's March"; "Hibernian Bouquet"; "Dante's Dream"; "The Sailor's Song".

financial stability and prosperity the commercial development of the British Empire so much depends.

THE REAL OPINION OF THE INDIAN GOVERNMENT.

The opinions of the Government of India are clear. The remedy they have consistently and persistently recommended for more than ten years is an international bimetallic agreement. Their only reason for suggesting the adoption of a gold standard for India instead of a bimetallic basis is, as Mr. Luard, Councillor (one of the members of the Royal Commission) does in his report, because "the British Government is the greatest obstacle—perhaps the only substantial obstacle—to the establishment of an international agreement."

THE RESULT OF THE EXPERIMENT.

In conclusion the circular states that whatever may be the immediate effect of the experiment it will be permanent, so far from the action of the Government being a solution of the question it will, if persevered in, lead only to a universal policy of gold standards and contracted currencies instead of the joint standard, which would preserve the full use of both gold and silver as legal tender money throughout the world. In other words, instead of establishing international monetary concord, it will inaugurate an era of monetary war.

"WHAT IS THE LUMINIFEROUS ETHER?"

Recently Sir Gabriel Stokes, Bart., F.R.S., who now occupies Sir Isaac Newton's Professorial Chair at Cambridge University, gave the results of his investigations on this subject, which, though of science, has made his specialty. The occasion chosen was the annual meeting of the Victoria Institute, of which he is President. Sir G. Gabriel Stokes was supported by His Excellency the United States Ambassador to England, and the Vice-Chancellor of Homerton Foreign and Colonial College, although the Homerton students crowded in every part, yet the Homerton letters of regret at not being able to present were read from others, among them the Dukes of Wellington, Westminster, Fifes, and special commendations were also received from Lord Lansbury, the President of the Royal Society. The report for the year was read by Dr. J. P. Pease, of the Homerton Society, who showed that the Home, Colonial, and American members now numbered 1,450. The Society's scientific work had tended to bring about a true appreciation of the results of scientific inquiry, and to show that there is an absence of real opposition between Science and Religion.

Sir G. Gabriel Stokes described the luminiferous ether which had been selected as a medium whose velocity is supposed to cause light, pericles all space, is imponderable and infinitely elastic. He explained the results of the investigations of Homerton and Foreign men of science into the nature of that substance, and said that it was quite conceivable that further research discoveries might be made in the future. What its nature is, he could only assume; for instance, the results of modern astronomical observation had shown that light travelling at the rate of 186,000 miles a second, would take four years, say, to go from the nearest star to the earth; now as we saw the fixed stars there must be some kind of connection between us and them. There were two theories of light, according to him, one, that it was a wave, as was deduced from the vibrations of body, according to the other, it was a state of change taking place, propagated by a medium intervening between that body and the observer. Sir Isaac Newton held that there must be such a medium, either material or immaterial, but the question as how far did it extend, was as infinite as the space. Science could give no answer, if it were limited in its studies. If there were no ether, there would be no communication to the same or different stars? If there be such then, according to phenomena open to our investigation, there can be no communication therewith. But the properties of ether are no less remarkable than its extent, the question whether it is greater towards ponderable matter, or vice versa, cannot be answered. Sir Gabriel then referred to the undulatory theory of sound, and to his own application to Faraday, forty years ago, in regard to the possibility of the electricity having an undulatory motion somewhat similar to that of light. Since then Clark Maxwell had shown that the velocity of light agrees with that of electricity, and Hertz had shown that the one exhibits some phenomena of the other.

At the conclusion of the address, His Excellency the Hon. T. F. Bayard, the United States Ambassador to England, as a member of the Institute, moved, and Sir Henry Barkly, G.O.M.G., K.C.B., F.R.S., seconded a vote of thanks to Sir G. Gabriel Stokes, and the summer list of home and colonial applicants for encomiums as supporters was begun after which the members and associates held a conversation in the Museum, where refreshments were served.

LIFE IN THE EAST VERSUS LIFE IN THE WEST.

Under the heading "Why not stay?" the Times of India says—While the young Anglo-Indians which has before it the cheering prospect of retiring to a quiet life, to the enjoyment of its well-earned dues, for niente is dashing with its usual energy, the advantage of a quiet life, and elimination of the advantages of a passed season at home, where its very personality's all but forgotten, as against the brassy slopes of Tasmania, or an inglorious colony in Victoria, here is an old Bombay official, Mr. R. A. Stirling, a retired army officer, who has given up his quiet existence, part of the aristocratic Society, part of the social life, and the retired life, to the quietude of the retired Anglo-Indian.

The first principles of the retired Anglo-Indian are to live a quiet life, and the summer list of home and colonial applicants for encomiums as supporters was begun after which the members and associates held a conversation in the Museum, where refreshments were served.
